

#OpenCorporationRanking:

A constantly evolving ranking on multinational corporations' transparency

<http://opencorporation.org/en/> has entered its final phase. During the course of the next weeks, 100 companies will receive the invitation to participate to the #OpenCorporationRanking è which will be published on November 16 2017.

Here is what the ranking looks like as of today: <http://opencorporation.org/en/>

100 multinational corporations are being observed, in alphabetical order from ABB Ltd. to Volkswagen AG. The following data is available:

- Financial and social balance
- EWC agreements
- Data collection sheets precompiled by the staff

Seven rankings on specific aspects:

#Social Responsibility #Social Dialogue #Working Conditions #Finance #Diversity #Accessibility for disabled people #Environment

In addition to three #Transparency indexes

Each of these rankings is publicly available. Users may access and download them, and sort them out by position or score, alphabetical order or country of origin. (N.A.C.E classification.)

Out of 100 multinational companies being observed, we have selected the first three (podium) out of each of the eleven published rankings.

This initial sample is composed primarily by European TNCs (transnational companies) amounting to roughly two-thirds of the sample. It is interesting to note that no Asian companies are on the podium, and only a very little amount of American ones.

Chart 4 - Podia by individual company

A look at the macro-sectors. Some sectors (mining, transportation and legal services, accounting) and Conglomerates don't make it to the podium; the industrial and commerce sectors rarely make it to the first positions; while it seems Finance, utilities, services and telecommunications, constructions and tourism obtain better positions in proportion to other participants
